

Greetings to you from balmy Mozambique. It's summer here and the sun comes up at 4:30AM because we're so far south and they don't have daylight savings time here. As soon as the dawn breaches the horizon there's a chorus of bug songs. It seems like every few weeks we discover new species of birds and bugs in our region. They say it takes about 15 years for the wildlife to return to a post-war region. Such is the case here. There's a new sound in these mountains; a symphony of cicadas signing in the tree tops. It's true that "all creation praises Him." They're so loud it's hard to think. I'm amazed at the volume that can come out of a little bug. They can put a rock band's amplifier to shame.

Outreach

We've been scoping out three fairly large unreached people-groups: the Yao, the Makua and most recently, the Tonga. The Tonga are purely animistic and ancestor worshipers. The Yao and Makua are Muslim with a mixture of traditional animism. Collectively they number over six million people and they span three neighboring nations. They are tribal and hard to reach because they're so remote. Pray for our success as we engage these massive tribes. Pray for cultural sensitivity, wisdom and rapid language acquisition. Pray for safety and provision for our missionaries. And pray that the Good News of God's great love penetrates their hearts.

Peace Talks

The International peace-keeping counsel has just left Mozambique. They have been working with the government and the rebel faction with hopes of securing a cease fire treaty. But neither side was receptive to their counsel. So please do continue to pray for Mozambique and all of us here. There have been deadly assaults, ambushes and shoot outs for two years now. And it's concentrated in our central region.

Expanding Children's Ministry

Anna Capener, who has been overseeing our existing pre-school, kindergarten and children's ministries, is launching out into new territory. We are so excited about the impact the Gospel has had in the lives of the children and subsequently, their families and communities. Anna and her team have already gained favor and permission to replicate this ministry in a neighboring village. So step by step she's bringing the life, love and joy of Jesus into a new population.

I can't recall ever being happier than I am right now. I'm blessed to be in the company of missionaries who love the Lord with abandon. Rev. 14:4 says, "These are the ones who follow the Lamb wherever He goes." And though we're laboring in the remote corners of Africa, He is with us and blessing our efforts. And also, though you are thousands of miles away we know you carry us in your hearts. You co-labor with us through your prayers and support. You truly are one of us in spirit, in word and in deed.

The end of 2016 is now upon us. That means Thanksgiving, Christmas, a New Year, taxes... (oh well, 3 blessings out of 4 isn't bad)! May our Father's blessings pursue and overtake you. May His goodness and grace chase you all the way into 2017.
